Shanks, to effect a settlement of the boundary question, a bone of centention between the Creeks and Seminoles since the latter were located where they now are, on Creek soil, by reason of a mistake in the survey on the part of the United States. Several efforts have been made heretofore to settle this difficulty, but as the United States were only willing to pay the Creeks fifty cents per acre for the land, they were unsuccessful. The Creeks are now willing to sell at one dollar per acre, and on this basis the trou-ble will probably be settled. The citizen, in capacise to the facer expressed by the Governor that peace and good order woold not be preserved, and that colored man would not be permitted to vote as they pleased, assured the Governor that there was no other desire among the work of the whites than that peace should be preserved, the leve enforced, and a fair election had. Leading whites had all along inculcated this, and they also assured the Governor that they would pursue this course until election, and would, both by precept and example, do all in their power to preserve peace and good order, and secure a fair election. Governor Anne promised that in view of the statement made by the citizens, he was willing to much their view as far as he could, and to sreet that end he promised that he would order all militia companies which had been organized to disperse and go to their houses without their zons. But, or further conscilation, it was agreed that the arms of the several companies should be deposited in deposit in the neighborhood where the companies were raised, and should there be suarcied by United States troops to be detailed for that purpose, and to be under the control of the Governor, and to be removed only on his order. Or if the United States troops could not be gotten, then the arms were to be guarded by men seized by the Governor shift General George; that the arms would not again be delivered to the militia.

Revolution is again imminent in Spain. The usual precursors of a storm claudestine handbills addressed to the army and to the people) have already made their appearance on the streets, and are slyly passed from hand to hand under the noses of the police, and in spite of all their efforts to suppress them. The spirit of revolution is just now doubly fomented by a mysterious and foul tragedy, all knowledge of which the authorities are vainly endeavoring to cover up. Several persons have already been arrested and hurried off into the dungeons, nobody knows where, simply for having been heard speaking of the subject on the streets or in the cafes. The newspapers have been threatened and not one of them dares lisp a syllable on the subject. If his keen eye has discovered in Mr. Chandier a fitness which no one else has found out must be said, however, that in his many years of public life Mr. Chandler has developed no qualities which fit him for his new position. If the Executive has yielded to the clamor of a politician out of work, and sick for another trust, and has obeyed the dictates of that wre policy" which has so often usurped the policy which has so often usurped the place and principle in our affairs, he has done that for which there is no excuse. Mr. Chandler and the President have long been friends, but fitness and not friendship should have influenced the latter's choice. Some of his later ap-pointments have been so judicious that it is strange he has erred so greatly in the present case. There was no lack of good men, and no one has been named for the office who was not Mr. Chandler's superior. We shall be glad if he disappoints our expectations, but we can not go to his record for consolation.

We presume it is not necessary at this stage of the present political canvass, or in the present political situation in the country, to call attention to the fact that the Administration party has finally abandoned all hope of making political capital from misrepresentations of the condition of affairs at the South, and lying reports concerning outrages upon Republicans and intimidation of the negroes in the Southern States. And yet the plain, unvarnished narrative turbances at Friar's Point, Miss., asgiven by Senator Alcorn in a telegram to the ditor of the Tribune, furnish ing a comment upon the mischievous in-fluence which has been exercised upon the colored people by the pursuance of this policy that we hope none of our readers will neglect to give it a careful perusal. Senator Alcorn, though a citizen of Mississippi for many years be war and a Southern man in all his asso-ciations and habits of thought, is a Republican, and was elected by that party to the Senate, after having been Governor of the State, so that what he says may be relied upon as at least free from the bias with which an opponent of the party might be charged. His story of the origin of the trouble is impartial and truthful, and, as any one who reads grand display of fire-works.
